SUBMISSION FEES REIMBURSEMENT

(Revised January 29, 1999)

(Revision draft August 2005)

(Approved COB Faculty, September 29, 2007)

(Reviewed April 2012)

(Revised and Approved by COB Faculty March 9, 2018)

To encourage publications, the College of Business may reimburse submission fees for College of Business faculty who are the lead authors of publications. If all of the authors are faculty members of the TAMUCC College of Business, then the author who is electronically submitting the article may be reimbursed, even if he or she is not the lead author.

Faculty members seeking the College to reimburse article submission fees shall provide the Dean's office with a copy of the article, copy of the journal instructions that state the required fee, and the journal submission website link with the instructions for payment. If approved by the Dean, then the designated representative from the Dean's office will enter the credit card payment for the submission fee as the electronic submission is being completed. Alternatively, if the faculty member has received approval by the Dean for the submission fee, then the faculty member can pay the submission fee at the time of submission, and provide the Dean's office with a copy of the canceled check or credit card receipt of the expenditure.

In the case of multiple authors, only the lead author can claim submission fees, unless all authors are Faculty members of the TAMUCC College of Business, including the submitting author. Reimbursement of submission fees by the College to the author (s) constitutes an agreement that Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi will be listed on the publication as the school of the author seeking reimbursement. The College does not reimburse for fees charged for the publication of articles or other research materials.
